Seminole Tribe No. 35, Improved Order of Red Men, next Monday evening will visit Red Wing Tribe, in Washington. The local tribe will confer the adoption degree on a class of candidates in the Washington tribe.

Way Men Treat Girls Is Shock to Dr. Elliott

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 15.—Charles W. Elliott, president emeritus of Harvard University, addressing the Harvard Dames yesterday, said he had observed a coarsening in manners of young folks toward one another in recent years and, speaking as "an old-fashioned man" declared:

"In the first place there is quite a general coarsening of manners, the coarsening of greetings and good-byes, for instance. The commonest salutation, whether in conversation or on the telephone, 'which I hear, is 'hello, Bess' or 'Jack, hello.' Unheard of in my youth. I ought to mention that there was no telephone until I was thirty-two years old. I am told, too, that young men and women touch, tap and shove each other, sometimes with much energy. Unheard of in my prime."

TALK SLANG FREELY.
"But next to the coarsening comes, perhaps in consequence thereof, the great familiarity in social intercourse. Young men and young women nowadays talk chiefly slang to each other. Their address to each other and the conversation they have together have a rough form and relate to things, events, processes and subjects which the young men and women of my day never referred to at all, never mentioned and did not propose to mention."

"I also notice that young women expect to encounter rudeness from young men and that they don't much mind it. For instance, in my time it would have been an extreme rudeness for a man to take a girl to drive and smoke a cigar on the way. In fact, in my time I never saw such a thing done or attempted except by downright rowdies."

"All such scruples have disappeared. Here I touch upon what seems to me the worst condition in contemporary manners between young men and young women. Young women do not seem to resent gross misconduct toward them by their male associates. You have all known young women to be seized upon during a dance by intoxicated men, under the new custom called 'cutting in.' That has happened within my range of acquaintance over and over again in dances in private houses in Boston. Of course, it happens oftener at public dances."

DRUNKARDS WELCOMED.
"Now, of course, there are arrangements by which the ushers pull away a man who 'breaks in' on a young woman when he is drunk, but the worst of it in my observation is that such young men continue to be invited to dances by the same matrons, or by the same managers of more public dances. That course of offensive conduct on the part of young men is not adequately resented by either young women or their mothers. I have been cognizant of efforts made on the part of college authorities to prevent Boston matrons who were conducting assemblies or dancing parties from inviting again freshmen who had disgraced themselves by becoming drunk at dances. Those efforts were in vain. They were not regarded by the matrons addressed."

In answer to a question, Dr. Elliott said: "I think that some of the largest churches are losing control over the young women and men who have heretofore really belonged to these churches. I notice that more in the Protestant denominations than in the Catholic Church; yet it is perfectly visible in the Catholic Church. Both the Roman and the Anglican Churches are losing control over their young people."

PENNSYLVANIA BOVINE KICKS OUT TAIL LIGHTS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 15.—Chicago's fire-producing cow, Washington's dynamite-eating bovine and the moon-jumper have a rival in a Pennsylvania cow that specializes in kicking out automobile tail lights.

Fred Holman, of Ingomar, when arrested on a charge of driving without a rear light burning, told Magistrate Succop that after purchasing a cow he roped her to the back of a truck and started home.

Soon afterward the animal kicked out the light, according to the buyer. Ten dollars was added to the cost of the cow when the magistrate imposed a fine.
